Not Bad To Take

When a knocker gets to knocking, get him busy. A knocker is usually a hustler and if you get him to knocking in the right direction he will be a big help to the community. Many a forward movement owes its successful existence to the knocker. He may not be diplomatic, but he is energetic. His work in conjunction with the judgment of the majority will be well worth while.

CLOTHES

For the innocent bystander it is to be mildly amused at the changing fashion in clothes. We can remember the time when we could change our editorial breeches without removing our editorial boots. We distinctly and very pettishly remember another epoch in the evolution of clothes, when we were able to get into our pants only by removing slippers and socks, powdering our feet with talcum, and calling in the hired man to lift us up by the button band and jounce us like a sack of spuds. Likewise we recall the not far distant time when it was considered a social crime for a lady to expose even a well-stockinged ankle; when nevertheless the bared ear was considered a perfectly modest and highly becoming accessory to fashionable femininity. You yourself have seen this resplendent orb pass to its eclipse, while no doubt "viewing with alarm" the emergence, through curtailed and diaphanous garments, not alone of the ankle but of the knee itself, to a position of perigee among the stars of fashion.

All of which brings us to a consideration of some thoughts on the subject of clothes. We reflect that if clothes had for their sole purpose the protection, and for their function the unhampering covering of the mere body of the person, the human race would be spared much thought, labor, time and expense. Fitting clothes to the bodies of their patrons is but a rule of thumb—a minimum essential—of dressmaking and tailoring arts. To fittingly clothe, along with the body, the custom and fashion, the individual taste and whimsies—the social as well as the individual mind—constitutes the clothiers' art.

But more strictly considered, clothiers are not concerned with clothes at all, but with clothing. Clothing becomes clothes only when worn. The wearer adds something that no tailor can put into them, something which individualizes them, gives them a character; some emanation from the very character of the wearer which identifies them even after the death of the wearer. If it be true "environment is externalized character," how more intimately is it true of clothes.

This distinctive clothier function of each wearer of clothes is what chiefly engages our attention and thought in these musings. If consciously and unconsciously our bodily actions add something characteristic to the external covering of our bodies, how much more must these add lasting characteristics to the body itself, which is but clothes to the mind; to the mind which is but the necessary clothes of the soul?

So when we consider the thing by and large, we conclude we are all and always tailors, fashioning clothes. What is our eating, breathing, sensing, acting, but the spinning, weaving, cutting, stitching, shaping, creasing of bodily clothes? What is our speaking and doing but the fitting of clothes to thoughts? What our habits of thought but the dressing up of our soul's fond desire.

How patiently day after day must the young pianist spin and weave, fashion and join nerve and muscle function to fit the musical notes which at the last are to form the unhampering garment of the soul of music. But this is only one illustration of what we are continually doing consciously or unconsciously all our lives, in our considered as well as in our unconsidered actions—weaving, weaving, weaving clothes. Many the botches, and misfits of careless hand, many the rents and holes of inconsidered action; that clothe the wearer in unsightly ugliness, or expose to shame of nakedness; requiring long days of ripping up and resewing, or of a darning and patching that oft-times makes the rent the larger in the end.

But not only does the weaver have a determining hand in making his real clothes, in a very true sense these clothes make the wearer. Clothes may not only protect, they may materially hamper the action and development of the body and hence of the mind and soul of the wearer. If "environment is externalized character," so too "character is internalized environment". Finger habits emancipate or enslave the soul of the musician.

Little does the thoughtless irresponsible boy who breaks into a building and steals, realize that he has already put himself into a prison of his own building. The longer he continues in such actions the thicker and stronger grow the prison walls. The automobile driver, who, callously disregarding another's equal right to the highway, forcing him into the ditch, or sneaking from the responsibility of an accident, brags that he has "put one over" on a "poor boob," has permanently "put one over" on his own already cramped and twisted soul. "Every smallest stroke of virtue or of vice leaves its never so little scar. The drunken Rip Van Winkle in Jefferson's play excuses himself for every fresh dereliction by saying 'I won't count this time'. Well! he may not count it and a kind Heaven may not count it; but it is being counted none the less. Down among the nerve cells and fibres the molecules are counting it, registering and storing it up, to be used against him when the next temptation comes. Nothing we ever do is in strict scientific literalness, wiped out."

"Of course this has its good side as well as its bad one. As we become permanent drunkards by so many separate drinks, so we may become saints in the moral, authorities and experts in the practical and scientific spheres, by so many separate acts and hours of work".

There is a "new cloth" that grows fresher and stronger with use, forever. There are clothes the style and fashion of which enhance and give the utmost freedom to any wearer, and they are moreover never really out of date. These were worn by one of whom it was said "If I may touch but his clothes I shall be whole."

THAT IS DIFFERENT

Santa Cruz bakers seem to feel very badly hurt because San Francisco bakers sell their product in the city by the sea which should buy its product of local producers.

The outside bakers should be taxed, should pay a license for the privilege of selling their wares in Santa Cruz. That being the case, why would it not be fair for the bakers of Boulder Creek and Ben Lomond to insist that the bakers of Santa Cruz pay a license for the privilege of selling their bread and pastries in the mountain community? The bakers of the mountain towns are producing quality goods and no doubt feel themselves as much entitled to the local patronage as the Santa Cruz bakers do in their home locality. But of course that is different. It's a case of money coming in while the other is a case of money going out.

TO THE CHURCHES

To the churches of the community the Union High School Community, which this paper aims to serve, Community offers space in its columns for the announcement of services free of charge. We ask that ministers in charge of the churches, or some one in charge of the church publicity, send word to the paper whenever these announcements are out of date or in any way incorrect. We wish Community's service to the community to be a real service and all can help to make it so.

DOUBLE DROWNING

ACCIDENT LAST SUNDAY

A sad ending of a happy day was that of last Sunday when Miss Alice Kusan, of San Francisco, fell from a raft in the river at Longley Ranch above Boulder Creek and Alfred Dock-er, of Jersey City, N. J., who dove into the water to rescue her with the result that both were drowned.

Possibly there is no sadder phase of the tragedy than the fact that Mrs. Raymond, fiancée of Mr. Dockee, had to witness the struggle for life and was unable to get help to the rescue in time to save the lives of her friend and husband to be. Dr. Phillips was summoned but could do nothing to save the unfortunate couple.

When Mrs. Raymond found she could do nothing she ran to the ranch house for aid. E. R. Longley, owner of the ranch, responded to her call but when he arrived at the river there was not even a ripple on the water to indicate a tragedy.

But the bringing of the lifeless bodies to shore later, gave a gruesome evidence of the irony of fate which seems imbued with the power to deprive human beings of their lives without a moment's warning.

It was all over so quickly that those who come to give assistance could hardly make it seem really a fact that two people had gone to their final rest who a few short minutes before had been in the enjoyment of life, health and happiness.

The Good Cheer Club is to hold its first dance in Middleton hall this Saturday evening. It is to be an all night session and a good time is promised.

The Boulder Creek Improvement club held its first meeting in the library building Monday evening. A report of progress was made by the committees with the prospect that work of value to the community may follow in the near future.

PERSONALS

Mrs. J. H. Aram is now able to be out of bed and feeling quite well after her recent illness.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Wetly of the S. P. company is going to leave us. But as it is an advancement—a ticket job at San Luis Obispo, we wish him the best of luck. Mr. Sorenson will succeed Mr. Wetly at the local S. P. depot.

Miss Lillian Hesse is spending her vacation with her parents in Boulder Creek.

BROTHERS WITH A TAIL

A monkey to a comet spoke:
"Oh brother with a tail,
Is it the same with starry folk
As in this earthly vale?
Do those who have come after you
Look down in jeering scorn
Because their evolution grew
Of caudal splendor shorn?"

The comet to the monkey spoke:
"O brother with a tail,
Respectfully do they invoke
My long and streaming flail.
I make them think it comes again
To blow them into bits—
Just try my scheme on stars or men
And scare them into fits."

CAREERS FOR YOUNG BRITONS

Compared With Opportunities in America They May Be Said to Be Decidedly Limited.

Here in America we are quite likely to take for granted that if a man has a good education, then his finding of an opportunity to apply it profitably is a comparatively simple matter. Certainly our whole educational program, and especially our whole line of educational appeal and propaganda, will have to be changed the moment that assumption is no longer to be made. Whiting Williams writes in Scribner's. "Equip yourself, Young America, and the country's yours!" we say in effect to our youth whether in school or at work.

In Britain there is much testimony to the effect that that assumption is not thus to be made.

Unless they spend additional years training for medicine, the law, or other of the professions, graduates of the universities must pretty much expect to find berths in the civil service. The exams for that are extremely difficult. Those who come out of them with marks at the top of the list get the best of the positions in the most important departments at home. They next go out to India or other provinces, while those below them take the second grade of the places here—and so on.

The pay starts at about £300 (nominally $1,500, and considerably more in buying power), with gradual yearly increases up to a certain maximum and a pension.

BEN LOMOND NEWS

Mrs. O. W. Blodgett and little daughter Claire have returned to Santa Cruz after visiting Mrs. Blodgett's parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hessey.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Henshaw and family returned to their home in Oakland after a delightful sojourn of some weeks at Fernshaw, their summer home here.

The Jazz Cooties of San Francisco gave their first dance Saturday night. Owing to a machine accident they were very late in reaching here. From now on they will give a dance every Saturday night with a five piece orchestra.

Mrs. W. Anthony and Miss Nell Cole gave a very enjoyable afternoon to a large company at the Dickinson Tea House Tuesday.

Mr. A. I. Block and Miss Munson came by machine from San Francisco, Wednesday, to join Mrs. Block and son who have been the guests of Mrs. R. T. Lyng. They will return to the city the last of the week.

Mrs. Grace Smith entertained a large party on the grounds at Wisteria Friday of last week. The following night she gave a juvenile party by moonlight.

The Misses Pike, of San Francisco, are occupying the Foster Cole cottage as guests of Mrs. Cole.

Miss Helen Cole of Sunhaven, is entertaining the Misses Alice and Ethel Way and Miss Bess Rolfe of San Francisco.

Miss Dorothy Frost has returned to San Francisco after a week's visit with Miss Betty Henzel.

Virginia and Ward Dwight, Jr., are guests of Miss Edna Henzel.

Mrs. Charles Whitney entertained a large moonlight camp-fire party at her mountain home Monday night.

Miss Helen Cole and Miss A. L. Mac Menus, motored to Aptos Saturday and took lunch with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lane.

Miss Marjorie Moore of Berkeley has returned to her home in the college city after visiting friends in Santa Cruz, Ben Lomond and Brookdale.

Miss Sarah Wafer and Miss May Shannon who have been spending their vacation out in Ben Lomond, have returned to their homes in San Francisco.

Deputy County Surveyor Mutersbach and crew are busily engaged making an extensive survey of the Highlands.

Mr. G. I. Burg figures that more homes are wanted on the San Lorenzo river and is cutting up the whole frontage into beautiful large building lots.

A blaze of illumination in the San Lorenzo river bed on the Highlands Sunday night with the smell of hot dog, the splashing in the river and everybody singing a different song, a passer-by would recall a "Hot Time in the Old Town".

BROOKDALE BUDGET

TO RAISE 3000 DOLLARS

Brookdale is showing a spirit of hustle which has in it the element of get there, and a fine start has been made toward giving this resort a system of fire protection that will protect.

Nearly everyone in Brookdale—its visitors from other communities—are members of the Brookdale Improvement club and the club proposes to raise $3,000.00 for the purpose of water piping the settled community, cutting fire trails and possibly the installing of a chemical apparatus for quick action in the early stages of a fire before it has time to become a conflagration.

To this end card parties are held every week, like the one held last week on the pavilion of Mrs. H. C. Capwell's spacious summer home. Each person is charged 50 cents to participate in the game and more than one hundred people were seated at the tables last week, as indicated by the fact that when the expenses had been paid the club had netted over $50.00.

Several hundred dollars have already been raised in this manner the present season and the work of piping will soon be under way—starting in the most densely populated section and adding sections as fast as money to pay for the work is available.

Mrs. Capwell is president of the club and Mrs. Irwin is secretary and the team work of the entire organization is bringing the reward of successful results.

THE SONG AND THE SECRET

Just outside my chamber
A song bird in a tree
Pours out its heart in music
That creates a song in me.

This little feathered warbler
I've never seen nor known.
Where did it find this music
That I can make mine own?

Who tuned the chords so tiny
In its little throat so red?
Who made this song so thrilling
To find me on my bed?

I've never known the singer
Whose voice is in the tree.
There must be someone, somewhere,
Who knows both him and me!

After Eighteen Years.

J. S. Thomas, who is sojourning at Brookdale during his vacation outing is making his first visit to this section in eighteen years. He says there has been many changes in this locality—Ben Lomond, Brookdale and Boulder Creek—since he last visited here and thinks there are wonderful prospects for the future of the San Lorenzo valley as a play ground for tired humanity to recuperate from the daily cares of business life.

La Vida Girls In Camp.

La Vida Girls, to the number of 8, are having a merry time roughing it in camp at Courtright's up Love Creek from Ben Lomond. Hikes, bathing and life in the open are experiences much enjoyed by the girls who visit some resort for two weeks every summer. The girls will attend the dance in Park Hall tonight and return to their homes Monday.
